SHORTAGE NOT DUE TO PATRONS

City is Responsible For the Present
Small Supply of Water and Not Poor Public.

BREAK IN MAIN NOT FIXED

Three New Wells Costing $12,000,
Have Been Idle Since Flood of Last March.

There is a shortage of water especially in the northern part of the city. This time it is not the poor old consumer who is to blame. It is the City of Rushville, the superintendent of the water and light plant and the water committee. Conditions in the northern part of the city resemble those of last year when there was a shortage, only this time there is no reason for a shortage. The only reason that can be assigned is the negligence of the city officials.

There has been a break in the water mains in West Third street just west of Spencer street for over three weeks. The break must be a bad one as water has been seeping through the brick in the street and a steady stream has been flowing down the gutter towards Hodges branch. Supt. Brown and Councilman Orme, chairman of the water and light committee have both been to look at the street, but no effort to repair the break has been made. Barrels of water are wasted here each day.

The city has twelve thousand dollars in bonds tied up in three wells in the Jones pasture east of the city. These wells have been idle ever since the flood of last March. It is a well known fact that the water from the old well will not supply the demand and as the supply grows smaller each day the people wonder what is the trouble. With these new wells working there would be plenty of water.

The pumps in these three wells, east of the city were under water during the flood. The superintendent and a force of men after the water had subsided went to the wells and poured coal oil on the machinery to keep it from rusting. This is as far as they went and the pumps have never been started. The twelve thousand dollars in pumps is laying idle, when they should be working as there is enough water in these wells to supply the city. As is usually the case at this time of the year there is a shortage of water. But this year there should not be and for once the consumer escapes the blame.

It is pointed out that if these new wells are not started the city will be placed to more expense as the meters recently placed can not stand the water from the old wells. It has long been recognized that this water is very hard and will soon wear out a meter. The meters were placed only after it was found that the water from the new wells was not injurious. The city has a paid agent going around looking after the water taps of consumers while their own troubles are neglected. Supt. Brown gave as a reason for not repairing the break in Third street that he was too busy putting in new taps on the streets that are to be paved and had no time to spare with a broken main.

SENT TO DISTRICT COURT

Ging Will Case to be Tried in Indianapolis.

It was rather quiet in court today, no cases being heard. The case of Benjamin Ging, et al., against Emma E. Hammon et al., to resist the filing, recording and probating of a will was sent to the United States District court, the Indiana division, on a motion by the defendants. Part of the defendants are residents of California and the amount involved is over $8,000. The bond of $500 was approved by Judge Megee. Judge Megee was in Shelbyville and Indianapolis on business yesterday.

ASKED TO WATCH FOR MAN AND GIRL

Rushville Police Hear of Connersville
Pair Who Left There Wednesday Evening Coming This Way.

MAN A FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

The police have been notified to watch for Tressie Seals, age thirteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seals of East Connersville, and Ervin Stagner, age twenty-five years, of the same place, who, it is believed by the parents of the girl and the police, eloped Wednesday afternoon. So far as they can be traced they left Connersville that afternoon at four-forty o'clock, bound for Rushville. Whether they got off here can not be learned.

Stagner came to Connersville from Kentucky about ten days ago. He was known to the Seals family before his arrival, and was given employment by Mr. Seals. Stagner asked the girl a few days ago if she would like to take a trip to Chicago with him and she replied that she would. The conversation was overheard by the girl's older sister and reported to her parents after Tressie had disappeared.

Besides Mrs. Lindale he is survived by a Mrs. Litteral. Mrs. Holmes has been dead several years. HAS SANCTION OF CHAUTAUQUA

Plan of Civic Improvement Association to Improve the City Park is Praised.

WILL OBTAIN GOOD RESULTS

Chautauqua Organization Will be Used to What Effect it Can to Make Pitch-in Success.

The plan of the Civic Improvement and Social Service Association of Rushville to have a pitch-in supper at the city park next Wednesday afternoon and evening to arouse interest in the park and to cut some of the grass and clean up the park in general has the full sanction of the Rush County Chautauqua Association.

George C. Wyatt, president of the latter organization, said that the association liked the idea very much, not only because it would attain the same end as the chautauqua association had planned, but that it would serve the purpose of making the people of Rushville realize what a beautiful place is at the disposal of the people to use for parking purposes as they see fit.

"Of course, we are in the city park only by sufferance of the city council," said Mr. Wyatt, but we appreciate the worth of the plan suggested by the Civic Improvement and Social Service association. It is the very thing that the chautauqua management had planned to do. Besides aiding the chautauqua it will lead to many other things.

"We had appointed a committee which was instructed to see that the park was cleaned up and if the stone pile could not be removed before the chautauqua is held. The city council anticipated our desires and ordered the stone pile moved and the branch cleaned out.

"The chautauqua organization will be used to make the plan of the other organization a success. We intend to attend and urge everyone who can to attend. It is a splendid thing and I hope, as I am sure every other one of the chautauqua officials do, that the affair will be highly successful."

A. C. Brown and John A. Tittsworth, who compose the grounds committee of the chautauqua association, are greatly pleased with the idea which will be executed by the other organization. Not because it will be beneficial to the chautauqua alone, but because of the immense value of getting the people interested in the city, causing them to learn the worth of the beautiful tract as a park.

The chautauqua association has already taken steps to improve the park for the coming session of the assembly. The rustic bridges across the branch running through the park have been repaired. A number of wooden benches have been ordered to be placed in the park.

Mrs. Michael Yaring of Shelbyville attempted to step out of an automobile at Morristown while it was in motion and was thrown to the ground, suffering a broken right hip. She was carried to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Westerfield nearby and a doctor was called to reduce the fracture.

M. M. WINSHIP HAS LOW BID

But Late This Afternoon Union
Township Officials Had Not Let Contract For Gings School.

$2,500 UNDER SECOND LOWEST

Bond Issue of $15,000 to Erect
Building Sold to Peoples Loan & Trust Company.

Late this afternoon the contract for the Gings school building had not been let by the trustee and advisory board of Union township. The bids were opened at one o'clock at A. L. Gary's law office and officials immediately went into closed session. The bond issue of $15,000, made to erect the structure, was sold this morning to the Peoples Loan & Trust company, which was the highest bidder.

Morris Winship of this city had the lowest bid on the school building. He was $2,500 under the next lowest bidder. The Bryce Heating & Ventilating company of Toledo, Ohio, made the lowest estimate on the heating contract.

All of the six bidders on the building made estimates for an asbestos roof and for a slate roof. Also each one of them made an offer for the old building. The highest sum offered for the present structure was $1,400, made by the Shield-Chapin Construction company and the smallest sum was $225, made by Howard E. Elliott of Newcastle.

The following bids provide for an asbestos roof, with the sum offered for the old building deducted: Morris M. Winship of this city, $10,497; William Every of Indianapolis, $13,083; Spencer & Dinsmore of Indianapolis, $12,900; Howard C. Elliott of Newcastle, $13,777; Shields-Chapin Construction company, $14,558; Edgar Walker of this city, $14,700.

There were four estimates on the heating contract. Three of the contractors included in their bid an automatic regulator at $275. Their bids were as follows: Bryce Heating & Ventilating company of Toledo, Ohio, $2,027; Hoosier Warming & Ventilating company, $2,065; W. H. Johnson & Son of Indianapolis, $2,150; American Warming & Ventilating company of Muncie, $2,225. Elmer E. Dunlap was the architect.

The fifteen thousand dollar bond issue, which was issued by the township advisory board to erect the building, was bought by the Peoples Loan & Trust Company this morning, this company being the highest bidder. The letting was held at Mr. Gray's office.

The successful bidders are to take the bond issue at par and accrued interest, and to pay eighty-five dollars premium in addition to having the bonds printed. This was a much better offer than either of the other two made by Indianapolis firms.

The Fletcher American bank of Indianapolis offered to take the issue at par and accrued interest, and one dollar premium, the bank to pay for the printing of the bonds. The E. M. Campbell Sons Company, also of Indianapolis, made the same offer practically only it was worded differently. Instead of paying a dollar premiums, this company offered twenty-five dollars premium and the township to have the printing done.

The Fletcher American bank sent its estimate by mail, it arriving here this morning, and had no representative at the letting. The other Indianapolis concern had a representative here. He admitted that his bid and that of the Fletcher American bank were practically the same, excepting the printing.

COMEDY SET FOR TONIGHT

"The Old School at Hick'ry Holler" at Coliseum.

"The Old School at Hick'ry Holler," a rural comedy will be produced by the Young Men's Circle and the Loyal Daughters of the Main Street Christian Sunday school this evening at the coliseum in the city park at eight o'clock. Tickets have been sold fast, according to reports from the managers, and a large and enthusiastic crowd is expected. The company has been rehearsing diligently for several weeks and the play is expected to be among the best amateur productions seen here in years. There are many humorous features which can not be appreciated unless seen.

VACATION SEASON IS NEAR AT HAND

Already Many People Have Plans
Finished For Annual Summer
Outing—Tours Popular.

VACATIONS OF AUTOMOBILES

The vacation season will soon be here and already a large number of local people are discussing plans for their annual outing. The majority of persons take their vacation during the summer months and practically all the local concerns make arrangements so that their employees may have a week of rest and recreation during the hot days of the summer.

Almost each year the railroad companies offer special excursion rates during the summer months and tours through the east and west have become quite popular with local people. Quite a number are making arrangements to spend part of the summer in Michigan or other states in the north, where special summer accommodations are afforded. Others are contemplating river trips and these are enjoyed each summer by many Rushville people.

The growing popularity of the automobile has resulted in many motorists spending their vacation in their machines. Last year several automobile enthusiasts took long trips and declared that it was ideal way to spend a few weeks. Often the automobile parties carry their own tents and other equipment and combine the automobile journey and camping outing. Those who have enjoyed a trip of this kind say they are enabled to see many beautiful parts of the country which they would not be able to visit except on an overland trip.

She is survived by two children, Mrs. Otto Britt of Everton, Fayette county, and Riley Alexander of Indianapolis, and her husband.

"I See By the Papers"

Did you ever stop to think of the deep significance of the above oft-repeated colloquialism?

It is estimated that more than 95 per cent of the population of the United States that can read are newspaper readers.

The quotation, or rather the universal repetition of the same thought signifies to what a tremendous extent the public depends upon the press for its ideas and daily information.

Not so very long ago "I see by the papers" referred nearly always to some news happening, but today the expression is just as likely to indicate store news—advertising news: the arrival of some choice merchandise some change in style, a new idea in apparel or any one of a hundred interesting and constantly changing bits of information which crowd the pages of the reliable daily paper like THE DAILY REPUBLICAN.

There is, indeed, much worth while that one may "see by the papers" if he will but study the advertising pages.

BLOCKED TREATY WITH JOHN BULL

Senate Gives an Affront to Great Britain.

SETS BACK ARBITRATION PACT

When Renewal of Arbitration Treaty Came Up in the Senate Ratification of Old Pact With England Was Blocked by Objections From Senator Chamberlain, Notwithstanding Fact That Other Countries Were Favored.

Washington, June 6.—The senate delivered what Great Britain is likely to regard as an affront when ratification of the renewed arbitration treaty with that government was prevented after identical treaties with two other countries had been ratified without any objection being raised. The senator responsible for the successful blocking of the attempt to ratify the treaty, Senator Chamberlain of Oregon said frankly he based his opposition on the fact that ratification of the treaty would obligate the United States to arbitrate the Panama canal tolls controversy with Great Britain. Failing to move him by argument, the senate sought to avoid the appearance of giving affront to Great Britain by rescinding the ratification which had already been accorded to exactly similar arbitration treaties with Spain and Italy. The fact that only a few months ago the senate ratified without any objections a renewed limited arbitration with France, however, puts the senate on record as making an exception to the disadvantage of the particular country with which the United States is engaged in a dispute for which arbitration already has been asked.

The British treaty in question expired by limitation yesterday. The two governments agreed to its renewal for another period of five years, and the senate committee on foreign relations brought in a report recommending the ratification of the renewed treaty. In executive session when a vote on the treaty was proposed, Senator Chamberlain objected.

While many senators expressed the opinion that the treaty will eventually be ratified, there is good reason to believe that ratification may be held up for some time.

Senator Chamberlain has already introduced a resolution providing for the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer and Hay-Pauncefote treaties, upon which Great Britain bases her protest against exemption of American vessels from payment of canal tolls.

The action of Senator Chamberlain and the consequences likely to grow out of his action, will undoubtedly prove embarrassing to President Wilson and his secretary of state, Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan with the president's consent has been clamoring for peace and arbitration treaties.

SEEKING PATHS OF PEACE

Thirteen Nations Have Inquired Concerning the Bryan Plan.

Washington, June 6.—Representatives of three other governments have just asked for details of the Bryan peace treaty plan, making thirteen which have made favorable response to Secretary Bryan's invitation. The three governments were those of Germany, Bolivia and Argentina. Mr. Bryan gave the representatives of these governments copies of his plan for his proposed treaty of peace. The reply from Germany now brings all of the big European powers into the list which have expressed interest in the plan.

HUNGRY MAN RUNS AMUCK

Missing Wife at Supper Time, This Fellow Kills Three Relatives.

Canton, O., June 6.—Failure to find his supper waiting for him when he came home from work about 7 o'clock last night so maddened Robert Roach, aged twenty-nine, that he went to the home of his father-in-law, Adam Schatzman, where his wife was visiting, and shot to death his mother-in-law, his sister-in-law and his baby girl of sixteen months, dangerously wounded another sister-in-law, shot a policeman in the leg and bit a man in the hand. Roach then tried to end his life with gas after barricading himself in an upstairs room.

CHARGE IS NOT SUSTAINED

Court Instructs Jury to Acquit George B. Cox and Associates.

Cincinnati, June 6.—Following the instructions of Judge Caldwell, the jury in criminal court which has for several days been trying the case of George B. Cox, former political boss, and four other officers of the former Cincinnati Trust company for alleged violations of the banking laws returned a verdict acquitting the five men. The alleged withdrawal of a note for $352,500 from the assets of the bank was the principal charge against the accused. Several other directors are still to be tried in the case.

Initiative and Referendum Killed. Springfield, Ill., June 6.—The initiative and referendum resolution was defeated in the house and apparently is dead for this session.

PRESSING ISSUE TO CONCLUSION

China Reveals Impatience of His Government.

CALLS AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Though Not at All Unprecedented, the Japanese Ambassador's Direct Conference With the President is Regarded in Washington as Another Manifestation of Mikado's Government's Desire to Rush Negotiations.

Washington, June 6.—Directly to the White House has Japan carried her grievance in the California land law issue. Ambassador Chinda was granted an audience with the president and discussed the situation with him for nearly an hour.

The president previously had read the Japanese rejoinder to the reply of the United States to the first protest against the California legislation, and so was entirely familiar with the latest presentation of the Japanese case. Preceding the ambassador's arrival the president also had a half hour talk with Secretary of State Bryan, during which the contents of the Japanese note were discussed.

Though not at all unprecedented, the ambassador's call at the White House to discuss the issue with President Wilson directly was regarded here as another manifestation of the desire of the Japanese government to press the issue to a conclusion at an early date. Despite the pressure of the Japanese for an early adjustment of the situation, it was indicated at the White House that the negotiations are far from nearing a conclusion. In fact, it was positively stated at the White House that no basis of settlement of the issue has yet been brought out in either of the three notes that have constituted the diplomatic exchange thus far. This fact is taken to indicate that there is a most protracted discussion to come.

It became known also that the administration has no intention of initiating proceedings against the state of California. Inasmuch as the Japanese demand is for the nullification of the California statute, which it insists must be brought about by the federal government, the position of President Wilson and his advisers is rendered even more difficult.

Unless the Tokio government recedes from or modifies its stand against the California law, nothing but its absolute elimination will enable Japan to withdraw with honor from the discussion. Statements made at the White House lead to the surmise in some quarters that Japan has made some novel proposal which affords basis for the characterization of the forthcoming negotiations as interesting. The Japanese note came up for discussion at the cabinet meeting today, and it is expected that some progress will be made toward outlining the nature of the reply to the latest communication.

THE CASE NOW COMPLETED

Jury Has the Fate of Wood and Co-Defendants in Hand.

Boston, June 6.—The jury today will decide if in the opinion of its members the government has proved its contention that William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company; Frederick E. Atteaux, president of the Atteaux Mill Supply company, and Dennis J. Collins, the Cambridge dog fancier, are guilty of conspiring to plant dynamite at Lawrence during the textile strike there in 1912 for the purpose of discrediting the strikers.

Value of Corn Clubs.

Statistics sent out by the Texas Industrial Congress, whose motto is "Small Farms—Better Farming," show a wonderful growth of interest in the prize contests with which the whole state has been aroused to a realization of the value of better farming methods. Beginning in 1911, these prize contests, chiefly for corn growing, had 1746 contestants in the whole state. The following year the number increased to 4030. So great was the interest aroused last year that the whole scope of the contests has been enlarged, and there are this year 10,896 entries, being more than six times as many as were in the competition only two years ago. This year there are five classes of contests. The first class is for a four-crop model demonstration farm. The others are for corn, cotton, unirrigated forage crop and irrigated forage crop. The competition covers the whole state, there being entries from 215 counties, only a few counties in the western cattle range district being omitted.

There has been some criticism of corn club contests and prize winning methods, but it would seem that any system of stimulation of interest in better farming methods which produced such a result as this would be above criticism until something better was ready to be substituted for it. Texas is not the only state in which there are corn clubs and prizes for good crops, but it is the only one in which the movement has been so highly developed and in which it is so systematically conducted and fostered by an organized body. The lead in this matter has been taken by the business men of the state, instead of the farmers. It has been done because the business men realize the value to them and the whole state of doubling the yield per acre of the farms, and because they knew that this doubling depended upon arousing the farmers to an appreciation of the fact that it could be done and showing them how through agricultural experts.

Indiana might well emulate the example of Texas. We have in this state a number of contests, chiefly for corn growing, most of them being county affairs, but we have nothing to arouse the general interest that has been created in Texas. That was not done by local organizations, but by an association embracing the whole state. The greatest thing agriculturally, and it might almost be said industrially, which could be done in Missouri would be to get the entire farming population interested in the subject of growing more and better crops per acre, of increasing the output of the farm cept that they were worded differently.

Township authorities who have been building school houses in the last few years have been led to believe that Indianapolis concerns in this business have been in collusion in an effort to take all of the business to Indianapolis. The fact that these two institutions made almost identically the same bid, although it was represented at the letting, further served to add to the belief that such a practice is used by the Indianapolis bond houses.

The local officials presume that they have been doing that sort of thing, and that when one of the bidders was successful, they split on the contract. This, of course, if it is the case, would not give the township what it should have for a bond issue as the alleged competitors in Indianapolis would naturally place their bids as low as they possibly could and still seem like they were offering anything at all.

An example is cited to prove this contention. When Union township issued bonds to build the Glenwood school house, the highest bid was a hundred and fifty dollars premium, offered by an Indianapolis concern. The trustee drove to Newcastle in his automobile and sold the issue to a Newcastle banker for $225.

The proof that the issue was worth more to the Indianapolis concern than it had offered is found in the fact that this same house which bid a hundred and fifty dollars bought the issue from the Newcastle banker for three hundred dollars and the banker made a profit of seventy-five dollars without touching the bonds. It was for this reason that the Peoples Loan & Trust company was invited to bid.

The bidders on a bond issue do not have to make affidavit that there is no collusion between the competing concerns, but bidders do when the contract for the building is let.

Malpractice Suit of Chaney Against Elliott and Paxton Goes Over Because of Death.

ATTORNEY'S MOTHER DIES

Plaintiff Occupied Stand All Yesterday Afternoon—Tells How he Was Advised.

The five thousand dollar damage suit of Carleton Chaney of near Glenwood against Drs. J. T. Paxton and H. H. Elliott of this city was brought to an abrupt close for the present in the Shelby circuit court today when news was received in Shelbyville that Reuben Conner's mother had died at her home in Connersville. Mr. Conner is one of the attorneys for the plaintiff and resides in Connersville. The case will be resumed next Monday. The Shelbyville Republican says of the testimony yesterday:

Several witnesses were examined Thursday in the malpractice suit filed by Carleton Chaney of Glenwood, against Drs. John T. Paxton and Hugh Elliott. Mrs. Stella Chaney, mother of Carleton Chaney, who it is alleged was permanently crippled by the negligence of the physicians, testified Thursday morning. Mrs. Chaney told of the physicians' actions in caring for her son and of what they said when they were called to the house and saw the case.

Chas. Chaney, an uncle of the boy and Lona Chaney, a sister, were also on the stand. Charles Chaney told of the physicians' listening at the boy's hip as they would raise and lower the leg and of hearing them say they did not hear the bone grate. Dr. Charles A. Tindall, of this city, was called to the stand late in the afternoon and was questioned concerning the treatment necessary for an injury such as young Chaney received.

Carleton Chaney, the plaintiff, and father of the boy, who is left a cripple, took the stand this afternoon. He said that he was a huckster and that when he returned from his drive one evening he found his son in bed and the two defendants there. Mr. Chaney said the doctors told him the boy was big and overgrown and that he was suffering from an acute attack of rheumatism and would be able to go to school the next day. When he remained in bed several weeks they said they were unable to understand the case.

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McConaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns, in Which Robert Hilliard Is Appearing.

CHAPTER XV.

The Case Is Cleaned Up.

KAYTON laughed—a short, unpleasant laugh—and stepped quickly to the anteroom door. "Mrs. Martin," he called, "I'll have to trouble you to come in here again."

In obedience to the summons the woman slowly entered the office and paused when she saw Hurley. Before they could more than exchange glances Kayton said abruptly:

"Mrs. Martin, Mr. Hurley has just said that you murdered Mr. Argyle in an attempt to obtain money from him."

"What!" she gasped, and Hurley winced for the first time before her blazing eyes. "You, you!" Then she pointed her finger at him and turned to Kayton.

"It's a lie," she said with quiet intensity. "He killed him!"

"I believe you," exclaimed Kayton, with a grim heartiness and a passing gleam of triumph in his gray eyes.

But Mr. Hurley was not beaten yet. "Mr. Kayton," he said contemptuously, "there's nothing whatever to connect me with the murder, and you know it."

"Oh, yes, there is!" Kayton contradicted him and there was a new and nasty ring in his voice. "There are several things. You came to my office to ask about that 'N. M.' personal and then immediately tipped off Mrs. Martin."

"All in my professional capacity," declared the lawyer doggedly.

"As a counterfeiter?" inquired Kayton, with light scorn.

"As a lawyer."

Kayton leaned toward him and his eyes snapped.

"It was as a lawyer, then, that you advised Kreisler last night to cease the practice of his profession until conditions were safer—for counterfeiting?"

The last vestige of color left the man's face, and Kayton could see that his forehead was moist.

"I don't recollect having given any such advice," he declared. He tried to maintain the contemptuous note, but there was a sudden hoarseness that he could not control.

"I was afraid you wouldn't," said Kayton grimly, picking up the sheaf of typewritten dictograph notes. "That's why I reminded you." He glanced at one of the pages. "It was as a lawyer, I suppose, that you exclaimed, 'This is a plant!' when you heard that I had put Miss Mazurek in the house?"

As a lawyer, you laughed and said, 'So he's using us to throw the real criminals off their guard?' As a lawyer, you concealed from me that Mrs. Martin had a claim on Mr. Argyle. As a lawyer, you persuaded her to go to Mr. Argyle the night of his death to use her influence for your own purposes!" Mr. Hurley wiped his forehead with his handkerchief and crushed it in his hand.

"You can't bluff me with any frame-up story of this sort!" he rasped out in a hoarse voice.

Kayton gazed at him a moment and then dropped the papers on the desk. "Well, Hurley," he said disgustedly, "you can go to the devil your own way. If you haven't sense enough to see that it's better to make a clean breast of it and stand for a charge of manslaughter you can go to the chair as a counterfeiting crook that tried to blackmail an old man and murdered him when he rounded on you! You're under arrest, and the charge is murder in the first degree!" He picked up the telephone as Hurley made a gesture to restrain him. "All right, Lelsch," he said.

"Just a minute, Mr. Kayton!"

"You're just a minute too late," retorted the detective. "Here, boys," he went on, as a couple of his men appeared at the door. "Take this fellow away with you."

The next instant the handcuffs were on his wrists and the officers were searching his pockets. But he hardly noticed them. His face had suddenly grown haggard, his eyes dull with despair.

"Before God, Kayton!" he began, despairingly, "I tell you it was an accident! He'd gone into that counterfeiting, and all of a sudden he shifted and threatened to show me up. I took her there to use her influence to try to square it, and he tried to shoot me!"

"You knew all along that the man wasn't sane!" cut in Kayton mercilessly.

"I—I knew he was queer," stammered Hurley, now eager to admit anything that might bring a gleam of mercy to the hard, cold eyes that gazed into his. "But—but—"

Kayton's mouth shut grimly. "Better save that defense for the jury."

"But I tell you—the tortured man's voice rose almost to a scream—I tell you he'd have shot me! As soon as he heard who she was he pulled that gun, and I knocked it out of his hand and he tried to strangle me. I didn't want to hurt him. I just beat him off, trying to defend myself, and the first thing we knew he was dead on our hands!"

"I don't want to hear your troubles, Hurley," said Kayton coldly, sitting at his desk once more. "Tell them to the district attorney. Go on, boys! Take these apologies along with you."

And, still struggling, pleading, abject and terrified, he was dragged out of the office.

Kayton heaved a long, deep sigh, shook his head and turned to Mrs. Martin, who had drawn back against the wall while the terrible scene was enacted.

"Mrs. Martin," he said as gently as if he had never been inflexible in his life. "I suppose you would like to take care of Dr. Kreisler?"

Instantly her whole manner and expression softened wonderfully, and her eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, yes, yes!" she exclaimed, coming eagerly toward him. "If I only could!"

Kayton nodded sympathetically. "I'll send some one with you as soon as I can," he said, "and arrange that you'll only be detained as a witness." He interrupted himself to send for Miss Mazurek and went on: "I'll see you in about a half hour, Mrs. Martin, and I want to talk the case over with you."

he tried to strangle me. I didn't want to hurt him. I just beat him off, trying to defend myself, and the first thing we knew he was dead on our hands!"

"I don't want to hear your troubles, Hurley," said Kayton coldly, sitting at his desk once more. "Tell them to the district attorney. Go on, boys! Take these apologies along with you."

And, still struggling, pleading, abject and terrified, he was dragged out of the office.

Kayton heaved a long, deep sigh, shook his head and turned to Mrs. Martin, who had drawn back against the wall while the terrible scene was enacted.

"Mrs. Martin," he said as gently as if he had never been inflexible in his life. "I suppose you would like to take care of Dr. Kreisler?"

Instantly her whole manner and expression softened wonderfully, and her eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, yes, yes!" she exclaimed, coming eagerly toward him. "If I only could!"

Kayton nodded sympathetically. "I'll send some one with you as soon as I can," he said, "and arrange that you'll only be detained as a witness." He interrupted himself to send for Miss Mazurek and went on: "I'll see you in about a half hour, Mrs. Martin, and I want to talk the case over with you."

The Next Instant the Handcuffs Were on His Wrists.

You think I've treated you brutally. I have, but it was the only way I could save you."

The woman's lip trembled, and her hand went to her breast.

"If I could feel anything at all I'd thank you," she said uncertainly. "But I'm dead—here!"

Kayton turned quickly to greet Miss Mazurek.

"I thought you'd like to say goodbye to Mrs. Martin," he suggested.

"Oh!" exclaimed the girl. "Shan't I ever see you again?"

"No!" was the low but emphatic response.

The girl held out her hand.

DO IT NOW

Rushville People Should Not Wait Until it is Too Late.

The appalling death-rate from kidney disease is due largely to the fact that the kidney troubles are usually neglected until they become serious. The slight symptoms often give place to chronic disorders and the sufferer may slip gradually into so emersious form of kidney complaint.

If you suffer from backache, headaches dizzy spells; if the kidney secretions are irregular of passage and unnatural in appearance, do not delay. Help the kidneys at once.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney disorders—they are while others fail. Over one hundred thousand people have recommended them. Here's a case at home.

M. Conner, 1001 N. Harrison St., Rushville, Ind., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills with excellent results and am glad to recommend them. I had backache and pains through my loins and my kidneys were irregular in action. Hearing about Doan's Kidney Pills, I used them. They stopped the pains and regulated the kidney action."

"Goodby," she said gently. The woman quickly seized the proffered hand and drew her close. "Goodby," she said brokenly and looked into the girl's eyes. "You're where I was twenty years ago. You have just the same possibilities for love and self sacrifice. This man loves you!" Kayton turned a rich, blooming crimson and groped for something under his desk. As he groped he swore at it—whatever it was—under his breath. "He's waiting to take your life and make it what he wants it to be," went on the woman. "Like me, you'll give everything."

She held the hand tightly, pressed it to her lips and gazed into the girl's face.

"Well, what matter?" she said softly. Then suddenly releasing her she turned abruptly and hastened out.

"Who is she?" gasped the startled girl.

Kayton coughed and continued the search, now among the papers on his desk.

"Poor soul!" he exclaimed, and his voice trembled, but not entirely from "An urgent case?" he repeated softly. "Yes—ours."

sympathy. "She had a daughter about your age—and lost her."

"Oh!" Miss Mazurek glanced toward the door as if of half a mind to follow. "I must do something for her."

Kayton looked up at her quickly. "Anything you want to do for Mrs. Martin you can always do through me," he said gently. There was a dull knocking in his ears that confused him until he realized that it was his own heart and that it was making this commotion because the girl resolutely refused to meet his eyes.

"Oh, thanks, thanks!" she murmured confusedly. There was a silence. Kayton felt that if he didn't speak he would shriek and run out in a moment.

"Miss Mazurek," he said, and he seemed to have ridiculously little control of his voice, "the man who killed Mr. Argyle has confessed. You're cleared." (Pause.) "And Bruce is cleared." (Longer pause.) "And now—you can go home—and forget all about this."

Then there was a very long pause, and Kayton had to hold himself hard and keep telling himself that he never had any such idea, anyway. At last the girl raised her eyes.

"No, I can't," she said simply. "Mary!"

His feet got tangled in his chair and before he could extricate them the telephone jangled. He seized it viciously. "Well, what is it?" he snapped. "Oh, Chicago be hanged! Joe, I'm not going. You come in here in about a half hour—or, say, an hour—and I'll give you instructions. Take Cortwright with you. Yes—I've got an urgent case here."

"An urgent case?" questioned the girl anxiously.

"Yes," he said softly and smiled, "ours!"

THE END.

"Walk yourself out of my kitchen," said the spider to the fly.

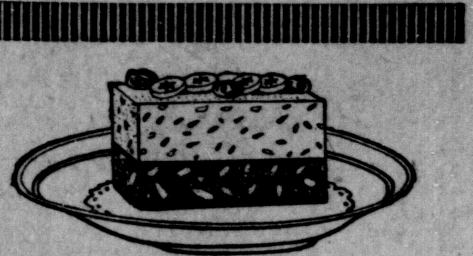

"You may have just been wading through Good heaven knows what sty! Ten million vile bacilli May be clinging to your feet, And I am careful nowadays Regarding what I eat."

"Your species once was welcome—Yes, and more—within my walls, But now I know your tribe to be The worst that flies or crawls. I know what laid my people low In their last dread disease, So take yourself away from here, And do it quickly, please!"

The naughty fly still buzzed about And argued on the thing, And so the spider swatted her, Smote head and foot and wing. He sterilized his food, his house He fumigated then, Inoculated all his folks And lived in peace again.

A UNION OF THE BLUE AND GRAY

Veterans of North and South to Get Together.

TO DEDICATE MEMORIAL BUST

An Interesting Program Has Been Arranged For Dedication Ceremony Monday in State Capitol of the Richard Dale Owen Bust Presented to the State of Indiana by One-Time Prisoners of War at Camp Morton.

Indianapolis, June 6.—Veterans of the north and the south will meet at the dedication, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, of the Richard Dale Owen bronze bust in the state house. The bust is presented to Indiana by former Confederate soldiers as a tribute to Colonel Owen, who was commandant of Camp Morton prison. The Confederates who were his prisoners remember him for his kindness and sympathy. Colonel John R. Fesler, assistant adjutant general of the Indiana G. A. R., has invited civil war veterans of Indiana to come to Indianapolis for the dedication. General Benet H. Young, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, will make the presentation speech. The Indianapolis Military band will give a concert before the dedication ceremony and songs will be sung by a male quartet.

IN THE HANDS OF RECEIVER

A Jeffersonville Savings Association Declared Bankrupt.

Indianapolis, June 6.—A petition filed in federal court by creditors and bondholders of the German Savings and Loan association of Jeffersonville asked that the association be declared bankrupt. Following the filing of the petition Judge Anderson appointed the Mutual Trust and Deposit company of New Albany as receiver for the company.

The petition alleges that the German Savings and Loan association applied for a receiver in the Clark county circuit court on Feb. 22, 1913, and that Isaac Dunn was appointed by the court. A subsequent report filed by the receiver, the complaint says, showed that the company had assets of $65,521.56, and liabilities amounting to $71,955.30.

The petitioners allege that the savings company was controlled by a board of directors who "paid little or no attention" to the affairs of the company, and that the active control of the concern was left in the hands of its secretary, George Pfau. The complaint says that power to execute bonds of the company was given him. He negotiated the company's bonds, the complaint alleges, to the amount of $75,000, borrowed money on them and appropriated the money for his own private use. Pfau has been missing for several months.

HE DID NOT ESCAPE PRISON

Robert Green Still in Durance Vile, Despite Reports.

Attica, Ind., June 6.—Robert Green, Waynetown banker-horse thief, whose escape from the prison at Michigan City and later in Ohio, have made him notorious, is still in prison at West Chester, Pa., to which he was sentenced in October, 1911. This information was received by Will Colvert, captain of the Fountain County Horse-thief Detective association, who wired the warden for information concerning a report that Green had escaped. There are indictments against Green in this county, and the reward of $300 offered for his return to this county has never been withdrawn.

A Conflict of Authority.

Gary, Ind., June 6.—The public utilities commission has ruled that firemen must pay streetcar fares, but Walter Brown, a conductor, was fined $25 in the Gary city court because he ejected two city firemen from his car when they refused to pay their fare. The city authorities say the franchise allows firemen to ride free.

Didn't Hear Approaching Train.

Muncie, Ind., June 6.—John Stimpson, seventy-two years old, a prominent farmer living three miles north of Gilman, was killed when the buggy in which he was riding was struck by an L. E. & W. train. Mr. Stimpson was deaf and it is presumed did not hear the approaching train.

Crushed by Auto Truck.

Martinsville, Ind., June 6.—Lee Thompson, twenty-two years old, was killed when the auto truck he was driving shot down a fifteen-foot embankment. Thompson was thrown against a tree, the truck pinning him down.

Cohalan Will Face Charges.

New York, June 6.—Supreme Court Justice Cohalan has decided to accept the Bar association's invitation to answer John A. Connolly's charges that he was a grafter and that he accepted an altered affidavit.

Bolt From a Clear Sky.

Dunreith, Ind., June 6.—Simon Bennett, forty-four years old, was struck by lightning while in his field, the bolt falling from a seemingly cloudless sky.

THEY SEE NEED OF CURRENCY REVISION

Congress Leaders Desire to Get Early Action.

Washington, June 6.—In view of the present disturbances in the financial world, leaders in congress and administration officials are more than ever convinced of the need of the enactment of a banking and currency law before this session of congress ends. For political reasons the Democrats are disturbed over the present trend and many of them believe a serious blunder will have been made if congress is permitted to adjourn without revising the banking and currency laws.

A leader in the confidence of the administration made the statement that the failing prices pointed to the necessity of establishing the banking and currency system on a modern basis before the present session adjourns.

It is up to the administration to decide whether the banking and currency bill shall be passed at this session. The leaders will abide by the wishes of the administration, even if the session is projected until late in the fall. The house committee on banking and currency will meet to organize on Monday.

MASSACRE OF EUROPEANS

This Was the Object of Latest Plot Discovered in India.

Calcutta, June 6.—The seditious plot which was recently discovered at Barisal proves to have been more serious than supposed. Forty-four prominent Bengalese have been arrested. Much ammunition and important documents were found in a search by the police. The latter indicated that there was a plot for the schemers to seduce Gurkha, Mahratta and Punjabi troops to promote a wholesale massacre of Europeans.

HORSE PLUNGES DOWN HIGH BANK

Edith Hoppes and Ben Beeson of Spiceland Have Narrow Escape While Attending Field Day.

AN ACCIDENT AT SPICELAND

Frightened Animal is Entangled in Wire Fence After Plunge—Scared at Motorcycle.

Miss Edith Hoppes and Ben Beeson are congratulating themselves upon being very lucky young people. Wednesday Miss Hoppes and Mr. Beeson attended the field day exercises at Spiceland and toward evening started for a drive. Mr. Beeson drove a spirited horse and was using his handsome new buggy for the first time. The couple was just leaving the grounds and the horse was behaving nicely when a motorcycle came rushing past and the animal without warning plunged off the road down a twelve-foot embankment.

The terrified animal fell on a wire fence, with a strand of barbed wire across the top, with its full weight, and as it fell the line tightened and the shock hurled the young man violently to the ground. In some miraculous manner the buggy remained righted and the girl hastily climbed out.

Beeson, in the meantime, had arisen, severely bruised, but with no bones broken. A number of men seeing the horse take the seemingly fatal plunge ran to give all possible assistance and the horse was quickly relieved of the weight of the buggy. Much to the surprise of every one the shafts were not broken and with the exception of a few scratches the buggy was none the worse for the accident.

A pair of wire cutters were procured and the wire cut from about the horse's feet and when he was able to rise it was found that, aside from a few cuts, he was all right. It was a very narrow escape from death or serious injury and the young couple are to be congratulated.

TO LET CONTRACT.

Newcastle Times: The contract for laying the floor in the Knights-town bridge, damaged by the flood, which is undergoing heavy repairs at this time, will be awarded on June 25. The repair job was let to the Burk Construction Company some time ago, but that contract did not include the floor for the reason that the county council had not made an appropriation covering it, at that time.

Clifton Jarrett and family have moved from North Jackson street to East Eleventh street into their new home which has just been finished.

SOLDIERS MAY BE HERE JULY 4

Plan Suggested That Ninth Infantry Be Brought to Rushville For That Day.

TO GIVE EXHIBITION DRILL

Effort May be Made to Have Celebration With Troops as the Attraction.

Rushville will be without a Fourth of July attraction unless a plan suggested by several merchants is carried out. So far no arrangements for a celebration have been made and if there is to be one, now is the time to get busy. It has been suggested that the Ninth Infantry, which passed through here a few weeks ago from Fort Thomas to Fort Benjamin Harrison, be induced to stop here for the day.

The troops are scheduled to leave Fort Harrison on the return trip, July 7, but it is thought that if proper steps are taken the officers can be persuaded to leave the fort a few days earlier and make arrangements to spend the Fourth here. The plan is to have the soldiers get in here on July 3 and spend the entire next day in this city.

It is pointed out that the soldiers would draw a large crowd here and the plan is to have the troops put on a drill. The sight of six hundred men in action would be a novel attraction and many of the merchants favor the plan. One of the soldiers told a local business man last Sunday that the plan could be arranged by seeing the colonel and he felt certain that it could be carried out. It is said that the troops are allowed a day's lay over on the trip and as this is the largest city on the route they favor this city.

Besides the drill a baseball game for the afternoon with the infantry team could be arranged. This alone would attract a large crowd as the soldiers are anxious to take the locals again and get revenge for the defeat of last Sunday. The expense of bringing the soldiers here for the Fourth would be very light and the attraction would be as good as any that could be arranged. Last year the Red Men held their powwow here and although it rained all day one of the largest crowds ever here attended.

All the plan lacks is the backing of the merchants and it is believed that if work is started at once it can be carried through. The soldiers attracted no end of attention on the first trip through here and with a drill and army formations here the Fourth the attraction would be a good one.

S.S. SCHEDULE IS FOR 24 GAMES

Each Team Will Play Every Other Team Four Games and Season Closes September 27.

OFFICIALS MAKE NEW RULES

Prevent Players From Jumping From One Team to Another—Also on Substitutions.

The officials of the Sunday school league have completed the schedule for the league season. The schedule calls for twenty-four games and each team in the league will play four games with every other team. The schedule includes the game played Wednesday of this week between the Presbyterians and the Christians. According to the schedule the season will close September 27.

The schedule calls for one game a week and every other week two games will be played. The games will be played on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The one game a week will be played on Wednesday and when there are two a week the other will be played on Saturday. The officials have passed two important rules governing the right of players to participate. One of these is that of one player drops from one team to join another team he must attend Sunday school at the other church four Sundays straight before he is eligible to play on that team. In this manner the officials hope to prevent any player quitting the game with the hopes of getting on another team.

The second rule is that the two opposing teams can not substitute their players in case some man fails to show up at the grounds. The rule says that a player can be borrowed from any other team but from the teams playing that day, in case he is in good standing. The next game in the league will be played next Wednesday afternoon between the Flatrock and Methodists. The Schedule follows:

June 4—Presbyterians vs. Christians.
June 11—Methodist vs. Flatrock.
June 18—Presbyterians vs. Methodists.

Charmingly Pretty OUR NEW UNDERMUSLINS

New in style, in decoration and in freshness. Aside from every other attribute there's allurements in a snowy drift of lingerie shown for the first time. There's further charm in their novelty, for now you can see the styles of 1913 in their entirety. Quality is relative, but be assured there's none unworthy among these garments, whatever the price.

PRINCESS SLIPS

Varied and beautiful styles, cut on the fashionable close lines, narrow around the bottom with lace and embroidery insets.

SKIRTS

Exceptional values, distinguished by handsome embroidery and lace flounces, deep and of extra quality.

NOTE ESPECIALLY—Our complete showing of muslin undergarments for children. We will guarantee to save you money on them. We feature, too, extra sizes in all muslin wear for ladies.

Shrewd buyers are availing themselves of the opportunity afforded them by the extremely low prices attached to our Tailored Suits. A purchase now means a splendid suit, up-to-the-minute, in style, fabric and color at a fraction of its real worth.
